About Kunming

Kunming enjoys the reputation of “Spring City”, the capital of Yunnan Province, China's gateway city to Southeast Asia and South Asia, and a national historical and cultural city. It is an important tourist and commercial city in China and one of the important central cities in the western region.

Kunming is located in the middle part of the Yunnan-Guizhou Plateau, connected to the Liang-Shan Yi Nationality in the north, Yuxi City in the southwest, and the Honghe Hani and Yi Autonomous Prefecture in the south. It borders the Chuxiong Yi Autonomous Prefecture in the west and Qijiang City in the east. It is the core circle of the Yunnan City Group, the center of the Asian 5-hour aviation circle and one of the national first-class logistics park layout cities. Kunming is a mountainous landform. The terrain is generally high in the north and low in the south, with multiple caves and lava fields, and the lava basin has a stone forest dam. It enjoys the north subtropical low latitude plateau mountain monsoon climate. The climate in Kunming is pleasant with annual average temperature 16.5 °C, average annual rainfall 1450 mm, the frost-free period 278 days.

Kunming is open and fashionable, concentrating the geographical advantages of Yunnan. From the “Southern Silk Route” more than 2000 years ago to the open Kunming, it has been a land hub for economic and trade exchanges and political ties between the East Asian continent, Indo-China Peninsula and the South Asian Sub-Continent countries. “China Kunming Import and Export Fair”, “China International Tourism Trade Fair” and “China Kunming International Tourism Festival” make Kunming one of the major exhibition cities in China.
